

By electronic delivery

From: Mark MacFadzen

Sent: Monday, November 07, 2016

To: Charles Piroli

Subject: Hi Charles, RE: Rules Notice Request for Comments

As long as there are IIROC member firms who don't have minimum accounts size, then there should not be exemptions for discount brokerage firms.

I would go further and say that any IIROC member firm who informs prospective or even current clients that their asset size does not meet their firms requirements, that they should be required to inform them of other IIROC firms who may meet their needs. Other than push them into their affiliated discount firm.

Thank you for the opportunity to respond and have input.

Regards,
Mark MacFadzen, IA
Leede Jones Gable Inc.